

PRESS RELEASE
New York, April 2, 2026

SDC Joins Ceres: A Major Step Forward in Accelerating Growth and Technology Integration

Combining expertise, technology, and service excellence to drive the next phase of innovation and growth.

We are excited to announce that in Q1 2026, Atlas Copco acquired Stainless Design Concepts (SDC), which is now part of Ceres Technologies. SDC is a leader in gas and liquid delivery systems also based in Saugerties, NY.

This merger enables Ceres Technologies to respond more effectively to customer needs. SDC is recognized for its flexible system design and strong aftermarket service offerings, supported by a customer-focused field service team that provides expert equipment support. Customers will also benefit from a broader product portfolio with solutions tailored to a range of budgets and applications.

SDC's expanded support capabilities and Edwards's global distribution network enables Ceres Technologies to further improve customer satisfaction and product delivery.

Visit the SDC Website